News update:

If you are a parent of a Year 6 then you will know that next week the SATs will be taking place. Having been a Year 6 teacher for many years, my advice ahead of the weekend is this: do absolutely nothing different to what you would normally do. They have worked really hard, learned as much as they can and I have no doubt will do as well as they possibly can. Play outside, watch TV, do things that they enjoy – everything else will take care of itself.

Class 1 have had a visitor observing their learning this week. Mrs Kerr and Miss Rawcliffe are working with Cambridge University on a project looking at how younger children learn and one of the researchers has been into the classroom to look at the wonderful things that the children are doing. We are enjoying working with the University and contributing to their research programme.

Reminders

- Please send in any remaining LEGO tokens – we will be counting soon
